

THREE WHITE AND TWO COLORED MEN, STRIKING PACKERS, CONFESS MURDER AND ARE SPEEDY TRIED AND GIVEN HEAVY SENTENCES

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Jan. 23.—Justice was speedily administered and justice-pooling in district court here today when five self-confessed members of the party that killed Jack Brooks, Negro packing-house worker here, on the night of January 14 pleaded guilty, before Judge James I. Phelps, and were sentenced to imprisonment for the term of years.

The five are: Walter Norris, 35; Charles P. Allen, 35; Robert Allen, 27; Nathan Butler, 35; and Norris. Norris and Norris are members of the Butcher Workers' Union on strike at the packing plant here, while Allen is an admitted strike leader. Allen is a cousin of the Negro who was lynched.

The speed with which the cases of these five men were disposed of today, as well as the heavy sentences imposed on each of the five, are a record for the district court here. According to R. E. Wood, Assistant Attorney General, "Wood said he knew of no other case in which the participants of a lynching were tried so speedily and given such heavy sentences."

Exceptional acts of violence, which marked the strike of the packing men, including Monday, December 17, resulted in the death of Jack Brooks, a Negro employed at the Wilson plant was taken from his home at 1805 East Fourth St. by two motor car loads of strikers, April 22, 1922, and taken to the southeast of the Capitol Hill district and hung from the limb of a large tree.

Brooks, who had been ill, was sitting at the dinner table with his wife and five children when the mob arrived. Two white men, who were pulled down to the ground, were killed. Brooks' wife, Mrs. Brooks, was also killed.
